powers of the committee are extensive and none of he members will discuss their future action. William E. Cleary, general agent of the Erie Boatmen's Transportation Company, and for many years president of the Canalboat Owners' Association, saily esterday:

"The canal boatmen are talking of making a contract with some steamboatman not connected with the Cornell Company to do the towing this season. The towing rate on the Hadson has been $25 from Albany for Erie canal boats and $12 for light boats. During periods of sharp competition between the Ronan and Schuyler compannies there was some sharp cutting of rates. During the existence of the Beverwyck Towing Company, or rather when it was owned by the original Beverwyck Company in 1892-93-94, there was also some cutting. In August, 1894, the Beverwyck Was bought up by the Cornell, which made an agreement with the Ronan Company to leave Albany for New York with tows on alternate nights. Since then there has been no open rate cutting and no advance. In March the Cornell Company bought the Ronan and now controls the towing business.

"I have not heard of its intention to advance rates and do not believe that it contemplates such a move."
